

The Importance of Going Out to Vote

BY: Mindy Rader, Rockland Post Contributor

You get what you vote for. Know what the Democrats want. Know what the Republicans want.

Elections have consequences. We hear that all the time. However, the current election has more consequences than ever before. We may be voting on the end of a representative government as we know it. And that is a consequence of the voting population getting their information from clips on social media rather than on intense scrutiny of the candidate's background.

In the past we have called ourselves a representative form of government. We say we're a Constitutional Republic. But in recent years we have been moving more to a Parliamentary System within the Congress. In the past our representatives voted their minds and the interest of their constituents. That has been replaced by voting with your party rather than the interests of the people who elected you. That is much like England and many Parliamentary countries where people run in districts that they don't even live in. And that's because you are voting for a party and not a district representative. That is what we are beginning to do here in many ways.

Another issue is that people vote on sound clips. They listen to what people say today without listening to what they have said in the past. When people say something, believe them. We see all over the country that suddenly, candidates are changing their views to sound more mainstream when they are really quite radical. Look at James Talerico in Texas or El Sayed in Michigan. Both have clearly expressed their ideas in the past but now say they don't believe their past ideas anymore. You have to be a fool to accept these people that suddenly undergo massive transformation from being a radical to being a mainstream candidate. Maine nominated a man with a Nazi tattoo who finally had to resign, not because he had a Nazi tattoo but because he had domestic issues. In my mind, having any affiliation in the past with Nazis should immediately disqualify you from public office. But the Democrats all went out to support him. Because achieving control for the party was more important than having a principled candidate.

The primary system of choosing candidates is largely responsible for what we see in American politics today. A small number of radical voters can affect a primary. Look at AOC. She won because she was able to get radicals to overthrow the incumbent. This is because Americans don't vote in primaries. This results in a candidate who is either corrupt, Radical, hate filled or all of the above. You can clearly see that in New York City with the current Congressional candidates who

So why does this election matter? That is simple. Look at what you get if you vote for the Democrats in any race. You get illegal immigration, urbanization of the suburbs, defunding the police, soft on crime, cashless bail, and socialism.

Basically, voting for a Democrat is voting for turning the United States into Venezuela, Cuba or the USSR. It is not because the individual candidates may believe this but because the party as a whole is beholden to the radical left to stay in power.

So, remember, when you go to vote, when you pull that lever, remember, you are not voting for a candidate, but you are voting for a party. And if you vote for a party composed of Democrats beholden to the radical left then you are voting to fundamentally change your way of life.

Look at New York, which has been a one-party state for many years. Taxes are outrageously high, businesses have been leaving, people have been moving to other states. Upstate NY has become poor and resembles in some areas, Appalachia. This is a result of one-party rule. Democrats rail about development in Clarkstown and other areas but don't tell you that this development is the direct result of Obama policies to urbanize the suburbs to achieve social change. Until national policy changes, we're stuck with this. This policy was given to us by Democrats. This is the big lie. We are opposed to development, but the Democrats are the cause of this development. They are building tons of apartments for rent, not things that individuals can own.

This is much like the Soviet Union did for housing. And only the rich or political elite could own property. That is the Democrats agenda. Take away your hope of the American dream. In our small town in a small county, it becomes important to have people who will represent us.

For example, look at the Mike Lawler/Cait Conley race. We have Congressman Mike Lawler who has stood up to antisemitism from day one. He stood on the steps of Columbia University denouncing antisemitism.

He called out bad people by name. Look at Conley who says she doesn't agree with what some people say but will not call out El Sayed or Mamdani by name.

That's because if she should get elected, she will support these antisemites and their radical policies because she wants to keep her job.

At a state level, Hochul has the power to reign in Mamdani and all the radical policies, but she won't under the fear that she will be primaried, which she will by the radical left. The radical left wants to keep power. And finally, look at the Attorney General who is as corrupt as they get. Her job is to uphold the law. But she doesn't, she goes after enemies instead. She allows crime to run rampant in our state. Finally, look at our local candidates, they are against development but where were they when their party produced urbanization of the suburbs to achieve equity? Silent at that time.

There was a time that I was a Democrat. But Zell Miller an old-time Democrat wrote a book about how the Democrat Party left him. Well, that is the way I feel. JFK would not fit in today's Democrat Party and neither do I. And I stay opposed to every principle of the DSA (Democrat Socialists of America) which now controls the Democrat Party. It's easy to have scapegoats. My parents were Holocaust survivors. We forget that evil can be voted in and lead to consequences that are far reaching beyond our imagination. The Democrats throw around words like genocide and holocaust without understanding what they really mean. We don't teach what happened during the Cold War or what life was like under Mao and Stalin and the purges and the gulags. And yet modern Democrats see Cuba and Venezuela as paradises. That is what the DSA stands for. And that is what the Democrats stand for.

At the end of the day, your vote counts. And this election will have consequences. Understand what your candidate really stands for. Read their past statements. Read their social media posts. And don't be fooled by them becoming mainstream only to turn far left after they are elected. They should represent your ideas. They should represent what is important to you and your family. I know what I believe and I will be voting that way. Listen to what Democrats want for you. Listen to what Republicans want for you. Don't make this about Trump. Listen to their policies and ideas. Vote for them, not for Trump. Remember the Democrats have one agenda; hate Trump. But they don't expose you to their ideas which I have explained above. You get what you vote for. Know what the Democrats and the Republicans want. Don't be fooled.
